Welcome to The Art Association of Harrisburg!
The Art Association warmly welcomes our newest staff member, Bryan Melloy. Find out more about him on the AAH Staff page.

Bryan co-created the popular ONSE series of one-night exhibits in local (Harrisburg, PA, U.S.A) restaurants and other night spots. He volunteered as Event Coordinator for a year. Bryan is working in Harrisburg part-time as a Gallery Assistant at the Art Association of Harrisburg. He also takes on private commissions, portraits, and is painting several personal series, including a series of views from the Pennsylvania Turnpike, a Steelton Steel Mill Series, views of the Susquehanna River, and a remake of the historical account and painting by William s. Reeder of the founder of Harrisburg, Pennsylvania's account of his being accosted by Native Americans, titled "An Attempt to Burn John Harris." The artist research paper has been reviewed by the Dauphin County Historical Society, several college professors nationally, including PennState Harrisburg historical specialist Professor Michael Barton. The 60+ page paper can be read on his website: <http://bryanmolloyart.com/john-harris-project.htm>.

Artist Statement: "I paint to show my appreciation of my surroundings."
